

Spring Semester Timeline

Summary

This week, Dr. Martin explains how important it is to look to Sacred Scripture to know how to live. We are all called to heaven, but to get there, we must not live as the world lives. Our world is so confused, and if we follow the ways of the world they will lead to destruction. We are blessed to have Sacred Scripture that teaches us all that we must do to gain eternal life. We must have the willingness to listen and accept God’s will. Following Jesus means picking up our crosses, turning from our sins and striving to be a saint today.

Small Group Goals

- Help men to realize that we are all sinners, and even the infinitely merciful God is still hurt by our sins. We must truly repent and repair the damage we have done, and become pleasing in the eyes of God.
- There is hope for us all as long as we are still living. There is always a chance to make things right. No one is so broken that God cannot heal them.

Discussion Questions

- Have any of the confusions and deceptions pointed out in the talk affected you?
- Is there any change in your life that you think is necessary in light of these reaffirmations of Catholic truth?

Supplemental Questions

- If you should ever fall again, what is your plan to get back on track?
- What are some practical steps you can take to prevent error from creeping into your faith?
